

RESEARCH SKILLS INSTRUCTION

The Library offers a module-based approach to teaching research skills through information literacy instruction. Each module is designed to foster information seeking concepts and skills as prescribed by the Association of College and Research Libraries, recognized by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education, and required in SUNY's general education competencies.

The "Information Literacy Modules" handout provides an outline, appropriate learning objectives, and time frame for each instruction module. Instruction focuses on specific concepts related to locating, evaluating, and using information, along with the skills necessary to apply those concepts. We are happy to tailor our instruction to fit the subject matter and topics relevant to your courses.

As you make plans to schedule your classes for library instruction, please call on us to review the modules with you, and to help you select those that best fit the research projects for your classes.

We look forward to working with you and your students.
