50 Years of Memories

ACC/CCC Alumni Association Celebrates 50 Years
A Message from ACC/CCC Alumni Director

Why we came here...who knew?

Louise Wilson
ACC/CCC Alumni Director

There were a lot of things I didn’t know when I was a student here. I didn’t know what the World Wide Web was, that Watergate was more than an apartment complex, and that the Towering Inferno would actually be two towering infernos. And, I certainly didn’t know what I wanted to do when I grew up. One thing I did know was that I would go to college for at least four years. I also knew that the first two would be at ACC.

At the end of July, I sent an email to all Auburn and Fulton staff and faculty members, asking those who were alumni a simple question: “Can you tell me why you attended ACC/CCC? I’ll keep it very simple for you to answer, too; I’m only looking for one word or one sentence.” Since it wasn’t even 9 a.m. on a Friday, I didn’t expect much of a response. What I didn’t know was that within two minutes I would get my first “hit,” (Thank you, Vicky Rumpf Hamberger) It was quickly followed by another . . . and another . . . and another . . . and on and on it went with dozens of responses. They ranged from the obviously “I wanted to stay close to home and go to college with my friends” . . . “close to home” . . . “it was the closest college to my home in Clyde” . . . “I wasn’t ready to leave home yet” . . . “convenient” “it was in my hometown” . . . “location” . . . “proximity, economy, intimacy of the college and its environment.” Then, of course, there was the financial aspect: “cheaper than SUNY Oswego” . . . “reasonable price” . . . “my Mom worked here and I just could not turn down the tuition waiver.”

There were responses that confirmed that they had made the smart choice: “Just out of high school I went away to college and didn’t like it, so I came to CCC” . . . “they made me feel welcome . . .” I’ve been to three different colleges for two different degrees and Cayuga is the only school that made me feel that they really wanted me there” . . . “Because it was in Auburn and I needed as much assistance as possible. I had just finished four years in the Air Force and was not a great HS student.” I now have an A.A.S., B.A., and M.B.A. I had a great start at ACC” . . . (Editor’s note: Didn’t pay him to say that . . .)”“My parents made me an offer I couldn’t refuse, very grateful, ended up being crucial to my success in college.” Another good one was “because it was close to home and it turned out to be the best decision I ever made.”

There were comments about education: “I knew that the faculty and staff for criminal justice would prepare me for my future” . . . “With its quality library and accessible academics, I couldn’t imagine why anyone needed to go elsewhere for the first years of college” . . . “I wanted a second business degree from CCC” . . . “excellent computer degree” . . . “I love learning and the challenges it presents” “It was in my environment, historically all credits are transferrable.”

Then there was the one that made me chuckle: “Because my guidance counselor hated me and ACC was the only place where I could override his recommendation that I never be allowed within 500 feet of any college.”

But the one that tugged at the heartstrings was from Nancy Dudley Decker. She fund raiser, but I really didn’t know how to limit it to one word or one sentence. She ended up writing, “I wanted a two-year business degree from CCC so bad.” After telling me her story, I have to pass it on. She was a woman who was more than thirty something, with three small children. She wanted not only a degree, but the one about the guidance counselor. Merriam-Webster defines “coming full circle” as “a series of developments that lead back to the original source.” Another thing I didn’t know is that years after leaving ACC, I would come full circle.” Who knew?

What’s your story?

Now

Jeff Hoffman
CCC Foundation Executive Director

Welcome to our special 50th Anniversary Edition! 2009 has been a special year already for the ACC/CCC Alumni Association and for the CCC Foundation as well, for very different reasons. You could say that it’s been the best of times for the former, and quite frankly the worst—or nearly the worst—for the Foundation. Let me explain.

The CCC Foundation is in essence a vast collection of people: more than 14,000 alumni plus many other donors. It includes all of our own staff, plus the entire college community of faculty, staff, retirees and students. Add to the mix an array of key volunteers—the Alumni and Foundation boards, the Trustees and others—and you can see how many people support our efforts.

Sometimes, especially in 2009, we need to hear the people and focus on the paper. By that, I mean that the CCC Foundation may also be defined as “paper” as a long list of accounts, of assets and liabilities. If you’re an investor at all or have followed the economic trends, you can surmise that 2009 has not been a good year “on paper” for our Foundation. I’m using one hypothetical scholarship fund as an example of what’s been happening. Multiply this by the 100+ funds we oversee at the Foundation and you can see what we’ve been working against in 2009. (If you’re not interested in the gory details, feel free to skip to the last two paragraphs of this letter.)

Let’s say that the XYZ Scholarship Fund was created a few years back by Mr. and Mrs. XYZ (who else would name a fund “XYZ”?). The XYZ’s gave $10,000 to the Fund “because we’ve faithfully invested. Most

A Message from CCC President

Happy 50th Anniversary!

Dr. Daniel Larson
CCC President

Fifty years is a golden anniversary — and it is for the Alumni Association. While we may wonder what people fifty years ago thought we would be today, people fifty years from now may ask the same about us. So, the take away is let’s be careful what we do! One of the real attributes of the College is the strength and activity of the Alumni Association. Many of our colleague institutions are surprised at the level of alumni interest we have here. We know that 75% of you live in this region, and 97% of you live in New York State. This tells us much about the strength and connectedness of our graduates. It is to the credit of the Alumni Association that so many of you retain strong ties to the College.

As we continue to build upon the strong foundation of these past fifty years, each of you can be an important ambassador in the community. Your network and connections through family, friends, co-workers, and communities are among the most important avenues to tell the College story. We will continue to develop and evolve in addressing the needs of our region. We have new and updated programs to deliver and innovative ways to deliver them. Although we can be creative and innovative in addressing our current challenges and opportunities, we need your support and connectedness to help ensure our continuing success. In these perilous and challenging times, with the work of our faculty and staff, our future remains bright. We know the ways in which they help to change students’ lives. We know, as well, that many families and friends are concerned about how to use their educational dollars as effectively as possible. Our student numbers for the Fall semester are very strong and in positive. In many ways, we are working through uncharted territory.

This is the work that will help to ensure our powerful legacy—for not only for the past fifty years but also for today and the next fifty years. Thank you for all you do to help us. And, congratulations for a golden anniversary of fine activity and support. May there be many, many more!

Sincerely,

Dan

Greetings to all the distinguished Alumni of Auburn/Cayuga Community College!

This is my next-to-last official duty as the president of the ACC/CCC Alumni Association, as it is my final year for holding this office. I have enjoyed it immensely and it is so easy when you work with an Alumni Board such as the one that serves the college community. I have a passion for history, as you all know by now, and like to reflect on past events that are now brought into the present. I could not imagine on that graduation day in 1974 that I would be able to come back and hold such a post as I did these past three years. It was indeed an honor and a privilege. This year was even more special when my youngest daughter, Ryann, was added to the Alumni rolls.

The Association is in great shape and is extremely active with a variety of activities for everyone. Our Alumni excursions are ever popular. The New York City trips are always full and the demand for the Gettysburg Trip ‘forced’ me, er…us, to create a second trip. Ah, the demands placed upon us. We continue to hold events at both campuses and within the expanded communities, as we have a solid foothold in Oswego County with the Fulton Campus that grows every year. This year, we extended the Annual Phone-a-Thon to include the Fulton Campus. I must say the group that worked the phones there was a dedicated and hard-working group, and the pledges reflected that. We do seek out more alumni from that location and urge anyone with interest to contact us to serve on the Board. This year, due to term limitations, we will be losing (some/a) member(s), but hopefully for just a short time. I want to thank Linda Townsend ‘74 for her outstanding service to the Board and the college.

There will be a new slate of officers upon our annual elections in September, and my last duty is to preside over those elections. I can assure you that these new office holders will continue to serve the college and our alumni to the best of their ability. Look where they graduated from…. It would be improper not to acknowledge the most recent retirees from Cayuga Community College, and I am sure that you will recognize the names with fond memories. 2009 has seen the retirements of Joe Camardo, Brenda Holland, Paul Shinall, and George Smtric. On a personal note, I would be remiss if I do not single out George Smtric on his retirement. Not only did I have him in class, but he hired me in 1991 to instruct Criminal Justice at CCC. Thank you, George, and thank you to all our 2009 retirees.

A couple of people who thankfully are not leaving need mentioning. There is a not-so-hidden secret here at Cayuga. We have Jeff Hoffman running the Foundation, and he just might be good at it. No – he is great at it. If you get a call from a man identifying himself as Jeff, just do what he asks. He is only looking out for the good of the college and not himself. And, do not be worried about his grin, he is always like that. The other person edits this article and probably will try to cut it to under 5 pages. Not himself. Alumni Trips

The Alumni Association has sponsored an assortment of trips over the years. They are open to the public as part of our mission to promote and enhance relations among alumni, the College community, and the community at large.

Recently the most popular offerings have drawn record numbers of trip-goers. In December 2008 the response for the day trip to New York City to see the Radio City Christmas Spectacular was so great, a second bus had to be added to accommodate 93 people. In July, 50 people again ventured to New York City for a day of sight-seeing, theater, and shopping.

The ever popular Gettysburg Battlefield excursion, led by Civil War buff and outgoing Alumni Board president, John Lamphere, is always a sellout. Due to popular demand the usually one-night trip was extended to a two nighter, and a private, walking, ghost tour was added. The trip sold out in one week. John agreed to do another the following weekend, so currently there are back-to-back sold out trips, September 18-20 and September 25-26.

The last offering for the year will be another New York City trip. But again, due to popular request, the format will be changed. Usually it’s a one-day trip to see the Radio City show, but this year it will be an overnighter. No show will be included giving trip-goers the option to see a show of their choice or not, the decision is up to the individual. The trip will depart from the Auburn campus on Saturday, November 14, at 6 a.m. and will return early Sunday evening. Accommodations will be conveniently located at the Marriott East Side at 525 Lexington Avenue at 49th Street.

(AUBURN COMMUNITY COLLEGE REMEMBERED)

By Christine (Ross) Wisan ’75

It was four girls sharing everything in a suite on the top floor. It was Fran and Jan playing “Sweet Baby James” across the hall and “Sam” baking snickerdoodles downstairs. It was…

…the “language ladies” corner office and their always warm welcome. Frau Renate Rewald’s down-to-earth counseling, friendly mentoring and leadership for the German Club. Madame Anne Seld, a good sport and very nice lady, who worked hard drilling French into sleepy heads at 8 a.m. each weekday. Pleasant Senora Lorraine Weed teaching her wonderfully practical, organized approach to Spanish. …Mr. Ben Ahner, volunteering at the prison and expanding our world views with well-chosen articles, lively discussions and compassion. (He is a big part of the reason my bachelor’s degree is in sociology.) …Mr. Robert Brunell nobly striving to instill a sense of the grandeur of our cultural roots in freshman (!) English students. …Mrs. Mildred Haight whose lovely graciousness created a perfect backdrop for art appreciation. …YAFers (Young Americans for Freedom) who stayed true to their colors, with dignity. …Cheryl, Ruth and Jan—dear friends who shared times of special fellowship. …An historic old city to explore with a duck pond and forests that changed with the seasons. It was a love affair with a place and a time and the people who made it special!
Auburn/Cayuga Community College has always been fortunate to have a group of alumni who were and are hard-working and enthusiastic members. There was a strong commitment to the Association since its first board of directors held their inaugural meeting on August 25, 1957, where Shirley Tarby ’57 was elected chairman of the board and opening remarks were presented by college President Albert T. Skinner. Shirley and 14 other members were selected at that first organizational meeting of the group. After the meeting, board member Richard LaVarnway led a discussion on the proposed plans and the purpose of the group with 70 alumni in attendance. The group was formulated and grew under the direction of the dedicated board members. In 1987 Virginia Iocolano was appointed as the first Director of Alumni Affairs and had office hours two days a week in the Student Development Center. The Alumni Association then underwent a reorganization. As its first undertaking, the Association accepted a challenge from the CCCC Foundation and raised $50,000 in matched gifts in support of Cayuga’s capital gift project. The Association continued to grow and flourish under her enthusiastic tutelage until her retirement in 1994. By this time, the Association had grown enough to warrant a full-time director and named Deborah “Mickey” Maywalt Lord ’75 to the post. Mickey continued to guide the Association’s growth through some of the College’s most challenging times.

Next came Elisabeth Hurley, who expanded the Association’s range to include numerous community projects and services. During her tenure, the Association received a number of awards including several for “Excellence in Alumni Development & Programming” from the SUNY Confederation of Alumni Associations, as well as awards for the Association’s alumni news publications. Elisabeth was a tireless worker, who together with dedicated assistance from Debbi Dahl Purcell ’56 got the job done. Upon Elisabeth’s retirement in 2006, Nancy Butera Ranieri was hired as the new director. Shortly after Nancy assumed the position, Debbi transferred to the Fulton Campus and Louise Barbinczk Wilson was hired as Nancy’s part-time assistant. Nancy’s exuberance and enthusiasm were infectious which led her to dub the office “the Happy Office.” Nancy brought an upbeat personality to the position and it showed in the various events she organized.

In February 2008 Nancy left the college to pursue other business interests and Louise was named Interim Director until being named Director in May 2008. Louise looks forward to assuring that the goals of the first alumni board are met and that the Association continues to thrive, grow and retain. Interestingly, Louise is the cousin of the first director, Ginny Iocolano, and hopes to keep her vision alive.

Auburn/Cayuga Community College Alumni Association is celebrating its golden anniversary. Congratulations and applause for a terrific job of serving alumni, the college community, and the community-at-large for such a long time and in such a fine way.

I am grateful that I had the opportunity to be part of the Association for eight and a half years. Recall particularly the people I worked with and the people I served; I can’t help to think of the Association and Cayuga as a place with a memory: it’s more than a place; it was once home to me. Former Foundation Executive Director Julie Rich and former Board President Paul Ryan, together with their respective boards of directors, took a chance on me, someone who was moving from New York City, someone who had not worked in an alumni-related environment before. I am still grateful for that.

I am grateful to all the dedicated members of the Alumni Association Board whose support I could always count on and whose volunteer work was given with so much dedication and commitment. My heartfelt thanks go to Paul Ryan, Dick Paulino, Karen Merritt, Fred Falsey, Alice Hoatland, and John Lamphere, strong board presidents I had the pleasure to serve with.

I am thankful to former Foundation Director Maureen McKenna who led our Foundation/Alumni team for four years with distinction and style, cumulating in wonderfully productive team efforts. And when Jeff Hoffman became executive director of the Foundation, the partnership of alumni and foundation team locked out again! Jeff leads the team with strength, kindness, enthusiasm, and vigor.

I want to applaud Debbi Purcell who contributed so much to the Alumni Office with her energy, quickness, and liveliness. And thank you to Shelly Lee who helped me get started in the office, to Sue Arlos, to a number of wonderful work study students who helped out in the office over the years. I remember all with fondness.

With equal fondness I remember all graduates I had such pleasure to stay in touch with through semi-annual alumni newsletters, cards, letters, phone calls, the website, and often in person. I loved working with students, student clubs, the college’s faculty and staff, and the many friends and acquaintances the college has in the wider community.

The help we received from people for events and programs-including assistance with the alumni newsletter was immense. Thanks everyone! And thank you, Bobbie Bellnier, for coming up with the idea of a New and Then newsletter series that gave so much joy to so many. I still remember the fun we had with that at the college alone.

I also remember the fun and challenge we had during my last year as director. Working with a specifically formed Long-Range Planning Committee we finalized and presented suggestions for additional new and expanded ideas to be implemented within three years. I know that one of them- a dinner dance that took place in 2007- was quite successful and will be repeated this year. It is my belief that, when implemented, some of the other plans will meet with equal success.

A place with a memory-and a place with a wonderful future! Congratulations, Auburn/ Cayuga Community Alumni Association, and good luck!

Sincerely,
Elisabeth Hurley

Alumni Awards - 2009 Recipients

Adeline M. Bovee, RN ’03
Adeline Bovee is dedicated, compassionate, and without a doubt, an exemplary role model for future nurses. She is poised, professional and confident in her role as administrator as she interacts with residents and their family members, colleagues, and other administrators. Her compassion for others and their trials is readily displayed in her eye contact and willingness to guide family members through the transitions their parent or loved one is facing.

Abby joined Finger Lakes Center for Living in September 2007 as a new nurse manager on a 40-bed skilled nursing unit. Her mantra was and is “it’s all about the residents” and she based her actions and those of her staff on that premise. Abby found a calling for those at the end of life and personally created a serene atmosphere of peacefulness for each individual and their loved ones during that time.

She brings not only a passion for the elderly to her position but also leadership, a directness that is refreshing, and a maturity that comes from surviving some of life’s challenges. As a smart and independent thinker, empathetic and dedicated, we believe that she will be a dynamic leader in the field of long term care for the next generation of frail and elderly Central New Yorkers.

-Nominators Linda Rooker and Karen A. Jeffrey

William P. Lovell ’59
I can’t think of any person more qualified and worthy to receive this award than William “Bill” Lovell. The basis of his nomination is not only because he is an alumnus, but because he has taught at Cayuga Community College full time since 1968, as well as on an adjunct basis four years prior to that. He has provided 41 years of continued and dedicated service—not just to the institution, but to the students and faculty. Not only is Bill a Professor of Business, but he is the Division Chair for the entire Fulton Campus faculty. He completes his monumental task each year with consideration, professionalism and accuracy, while still maintaining his instructional load.

The words most often used to describe Bill are “professional,” “attentive,” “responsible” and “a gentleman.” As a Division Chair, Bill is always receptive to our needs and stands up for the faculty and our concerns. With his years of service to Cayuga comes a plethora of knowledge and experience. We are pleased to acknowledge this alumnus, dedicated employee and gentle man ambassador.

ACC/CCC Distinguished Service Award

The Distinguished Service Award was established in May 2008 by the ACC/CCC Alumni Association Board of Directors to recognize exceptional contributions to our college by individuals who believe that higher education is an essential element in the enrichment of our culture.

The award is not intended to be bestowed on a yearly or regular basis, but only when an individual’s “good works” are deemed extraordinary by a committee of college personnel, that may be composed of teaching staff, administration and alumni.

On June 30, 2008, the first ACC/CCC Distinguished Service Award was presented to Michael Hollingworth and Shona Falconer. Michael and Shona were nominated by ACC/CCC Alumni Board President John Lamphere for their exceptional work with the London Study Program in England.

Cayuga has a new brand...”Think Big. Start Smart”

Cayuga Community College has a new logo and a tagline, “Think Big. Start Smart.” The development of the new brand is one of the outcomes of a comprehensive market research conducted by First Media Group of Syracuse. Research started in June of 2008 and was completed in March 2009. Among the findings and the recommendations was the need to rebrand the college. The strategy to rebrand the college was based on numerous interviews and focus groups with trad and no-trad students on campuses, alumni, faculty, the business community, high school guidance counselors, and administrative staff. The ultimate goal of creating a new brand for Cayuga along with new marketing strategy is to increase enrollment and establishes the college as a first class community College in the area and beyond.

First Media Group created a number of logo designs and developed a list of taglines which were presented to students on both campuses and to other stakeholders. Through this process a final logo and the tagline were selected. The new brand has slowly been introduced since mid-summer via new printed pieces, TV commercials, college stationery with more to follow.

Memorial Gift Equips Cayuga CC Nature Trail

For the late Ruth Sara Goldman, a long-time Auburn resident, the nature trail on the north side of the Cayuga Community College campus was a favorite place – so much so that her son, Jay Goldman, of Silver Spring, MD, felt it was the ideal choice for a lasting tribute to her. Following Ruth’s death from pancreatic cancer in April 2007 at the age of 79, Jay worked with the Cayuga Community College Foundation to create a memorial gift that would enhance the nature trail and enable the next generation of Auburnians to enjoy this natural resource she clearly treasured. On average a CCC student’s lifetime income will increase by $7.20 – more than sevenfold.

Ruth, who lived a few blocks from the College, used to walk the trail several times a week, usually with a friend or two. The cinder path with footbridges and side trails meanders along woods and ponds, making a loop of just over a mile. It’s popular with hikers, joggers, birdwatchers and cross-country skiers in the Auburn campus neighborhood, as well as with College staff and students on lunch and study breaks.

In Ruth’s memory, her three children – Mimi of Ithaca, Marty of Auburn, and Jay – donated funds for several new amenities for the nature trail. Working with Jeff Hoffman, executive director of the Foundation, the family funded the installation of a covered wooden glider swing, two new park benches, and a three-component outdoor fitness station, all near the trail head and a nearby pond. On Sunday afternoon, May 31, Jay, his wife and two children, and other family members gathered at the nature trail to dedicate the new features. Many local friends were on hand, too, as were Hoffman and College president Daniel Larson.

Speaking to the group, Jay recalled that his mother took a keen interest in the trail’s upkeep. “Anytime she found a fallen limb or trash along the path, Mom would call the maintenance office at the College. If she felt the matter didn’t get sufficiently quick attention, she’d go right to the top and call the president.” Ruth gave credit when due, he noted. “I found a letter to the editor that she wrote in 1997, complimenting the College administration on recent improvements and additions.”

The sign dedicating the installation honors Ruth Sara Goldman as “the unofficial caretaker of the CCC Nature Trail.” Noting that the next day would have been her mother’s birthday, Jay said that the equipment made a timely gift, adding, “We’d like her to be remembered not only for her love of this spot, but also for the sense of shared enjoyment she brought to it.”

 CCC Delivers Economic & Social Benefits to the Region

There isn’t anyone who hasn’t been touched by the recent economic downturn. But there is a bright side to the picture. An independent study by Economic Modeling Specialists, Inc., an economic research firm has found that Cayuga Community College generates income, business productivity, tax revenues and a better quality of life for the region it serves. The study provided the following statistics:

- CCC graduates create about $11.8 million annually in higher earnings.
- State and local governments receive a 12 percent rate of return on their investment in CCC compared to private sector returns.
- For every $1 of state and local government support to CCC in fiscal 2007, taxpayers will see a cumulative return of $3.30 over the average student’s working career, in the form of higher tax receipts and avoided social costs.
- The study also found that attending Cayuga Community College leads to better careers.
- On average a CCC graduate will earn $14,100 more over their lifetime than a worker with only a high school diploma.
- The average income for an employee with an associate’s degree is 38 percent higher at their career midpoint.
- CCC students increase their average annual income by $152 per credit completed, equaling an annual “raise” of $9,728 for 64 credit hours completed.
- For every $1 invested in tuition and various college expenses, the average CCC student’s lifetime income will increase by $7.20 – more than sevenfold.
- CCC students, on average, will complete 682,000 credit hours of education, leading to an increase in local productivity.
- After graduation, 75 percent of students stay in the region and 97 percent remain in New York State, contributing to economic growth and expanding the tax base.
- Residents of the CCC service area represent an estimated 682,000 credit hours of education, leading to an increase in local productivity.
- Education programs and services encourage new business start-ups, assist existing businesses and promote essential job skills through specialized workforce training.
- The regional economy is $267.8 million stronger because of CCC.

Fall/Winter 2009

An original answer, which will help provide a solution to today's problem economy, is being developed in an unexpected place—Auburn, New York. Collaboration between a community college and an entrepreneur has initiated and established an environment where imaginative ideas, industrious ingenuity and inventive innovations are infused into a formula for business success.

The Stardust Entrepreneurial Institute, 2 State Street in Auburn, is one of the physical manifestations of this objective. The newly renovated, handicap-accessible building officially opened August 20th with a formal ribbon-cutting ceremony featuring appearances by SUNY Chancellor Nancy L. Zimpher, New York State Senator Michael F. Nozzolio, Cayuga Community College President Dr. Daniel P. Larson and Auburn City Mayor Michael Quill. Stardust Entrepreneurial Institute Executive Director Guy Cosentino says the ceremony celebrated the completion of the most unique utilization of the building's space made possible by a number of funding sources, chief among them, The Kaufman Foundation, The Emerson Foundation, The First Niagara Foundation and The Stardust Foundation.

Cosentino says the first floor houses five ‘incubator’ offices for growing new businesses. He says each new entrepreneur will have access to a copier, a mailbox, a fax machine, and wireless Internet. “In exchange for the business support,” Cosentino explains, “each entrepreneur will have to meet certain thresholds including completing business courses and developing a business plan.”

The hope is that many of those incubator spaces will be filled by Cayuga Community College students. CCC President Dr. Daniel P. Larson says there is a new initiative at the college to infuse the entrepreneurial spirit into each of the college’s disciplines with the objective of inspiring students to start organizing their ideas into marketable businesses that will create jobs.

“We are not just offering the same courses year in and year out,” explains CCC President Daniel Larson. “Because of what Kaufman Grants and the Stardust Entrepreneurial Institute has allowed us to do, our faculty is now thinking differently and working with students to take their dreams, ideas and goals and put some legs under them.”

The college’s Telecommunications Department has already launched student-run enterprises and courses which give students the opportunity to learn the recording and video production industries by actually producing projects, then marketing and selling them. The businesses are Cayuga Records and C3 Studios.

In addition to encouraging faculty to infuse their courses with entrepreneurial assignments and opportunities for study, Tom Paczkowski, The Fred L. Emerson Foundation Endowed Chair in Enterprise and Innovation, says new courses, ENT 200 Introduction to the Entrepreneurial Process, ENT 202 Entrepreneurial Innovation and Creativity and ENT 204 Social Entrepreneurship and Non-Profit Management will be offered for the first time this fall and spring semesters with more courses on the way.

“I’m very excited,” Paczkowski said. “We have the culture at this college that will embrace this concept of creativity and innovation.”

“The idea is to bring the students downtown and the community to the college,” said Dr. Larson. He says the college’s alumni association reports that 70-75 percent of CCC graduates live in Central New York and 97 percent live in New York State. “Think of the impact to have that kind of entrepreneurial experience behind them, helping people to see the creative and innovative use of those principles in their own reengineering of what New York State needs to be.”

Cosentino says The Stardust Entrepreneurial Institute also has an interactive conference room/smart’ classroom, which is equipped with state-of-the-art presentation and classroom technologies, available for community businesses and organizations to reserve for training and discussions. The upper floor contains the office for the Stardust Foundation and a new Grant-makers Library. “We are working with Seymour Library to provide for the community all the tools and resources available to assist in researching and applying for grant monies. The library will have on staff a trained grant technician who is ready to assist individuals as they work through the process,” Cosentino said.

Cosentino says the Stardust Entrepreneurial Institute building serves as the cornerstone to what will become Auburn’s Creative Corridor. He says work is already underway to renovate other downtown buildings. “We’re hoping to make the whole block look as it did in 1928. The idea is to create a more active city core while generating pedestrian traffic, downtown living and jobs.”

Cayuga’s University Center Offers Bachelor’s and Master’s Degrees

As Cayuga Community College alumni, you experienced quality instruction and supportive services. Now you can earn an advanced degree using the credits you have already earned, and take classes at times that fit your family and work schedule. There are a variety of colleges and majors to consider, and the Office of Academic Programs located in M316 of the Auburn Campus, coordinates all the available degree options.

To help with your career advancement, I recently started working as the Coordinator of Baccalaureate Programs. My name is Michael Greene and I’ve worked at community colleges for over a decade. I’ve enjoyed serving adult learners as a career counselor and as an academic advisor, and also managed federal programs providing support services and academic options for the adult learner. My degrees are in Career and Technology Education, as well as Counseling and Human Development. Please contact me about your preference for an area of study as we continue our division program of study. I will be collaborating with area colleges to bring courses to Cayuga that will help you earn the degree you are seeking.

For example, Keuka College offers accelerated studies taught one night a week. They offer a Bachelor of Science degree in Criminal Justice, Organizational Management, Social Work, or RN to BS in Nursing. You can also earn a master’s degree in Criminal Justice or Management on the Auburn Campus. Students are part of a small cohort of adult learners taking one course at a time. Most degrees can be completed in less than two years without having to travel far from family or home.

Empire State College of the State University of New York offers flexible education options designed to remove the barriers of time and location. Auburn-based mentors will assist you in developing an individualized program of study leading to a bachelor’s degree in over a dozen academic and professional areas. In addition, Empire State College offers five graduate degrees to help you reach your goal. These programs incorporate a variety of learning methods to meet your individualized needs.

We are very interested in receiving your ideas and input. If your family members, friends, or co-workers are interested in pursuing a bachelor’s or master’s degree, we would like to provide a Cayuga connection. What career opportunity will you create?

Now is the time to aspire to an advanced degree through a course of study at Cayuga’s University Center. For more information, and to offer your ideas for programming, please call (315) 294-8567 or email michael.greene@cayuga-cc.edu
Thank you, Sue Witmer ‘80

In the fall of 2008, Jeff Hoffman, Executive Director of the CCC Foundation, was named Interim Dean of the Fulton Campus. Jeff would be the “eyes and ears of Fulton” for the College’s Executive Staff till a search committee recommended a permanent Dean. Jeff thoroughly enjoyed his tenure in Fulton and was enamored by the close knit family atmosphere there. The feeling must have been mutual, since Jeff was fondly referred to as TGIF…Temporary Guy In Fulton.

When current Dean, Maggie Killoran, took office, a reception was held to not only welcome Maggie, but to give much deserved thanks to Susan Witmer ‘80 (Recipient of the annual Alumni Award in 2008) and to say goodbye to Jeff.

What Have I Learned?

One important lesson I have learned is the daily miracle that is the Fulton Campus. In observing instructors, tutors, counselors, secretaries, administrators, IT personnel and maintenance staff on a day-to-day basis, I see for myself that everyone is busy fulfilling their job duties, running here and there, and getting things done. But it is through my conversations with the same people that reveal that there is more to all this than just a job obligation. This activity and energy is as much about an underlying commitment to students and their success as it is to the job and campus operations. And so I learned that there is a noteworthy distinction between having a job and having a purpose…and that distinction has made all the difference at the Fulton Campus.

A Message from the Fulton Campus Dean

Well, it is autumn and I’ve been here at Cayuga Community College’s Fulton Campus for half a year now. Wow, the time has flown! These past six months have kept me busy as I have been learning the lay of the land at CCC generally and the Fulton Campus specifically. So the big questions are, “what has changed?” and “what have I learned?” since arriving in early March 2009.

What Has Changed?

Without wanting to sound immodest, I assume that my arrival marks one of the major changes experienced by Fulton employees in the past year. But to be perfectly honest, the warmth and enthusiasm with which I have been received at both campuses has significantly softened my transition into my new role. For that I am very grateful. Another change has to do with enrollment. While CCC is experiencing record growth this fall (like most community colleges around the country), the Fulton Campus is shouldering its share of that growth. This growth comes not only as a function of a teetering economy, but also reflects the potential enrollment opportunities that exist in Oswego County.

Cayuga CC Award for Faculty Excellence
Goes to Nursing Program Director

The director of the Cayuga Community College nursing degree program has been recognized with the College’s Faculty Award for Excellence. Linda L. Alfieri, MSN, CNE, who joined the Cayuga nursing faculty in 1988, directed the process of Cayuga’s accreditation renewal by the National League for Nursing Accreditation Commission during 2008-9. Alfieri earned her master’s of science degree in nursing from Syracuse University and is a Certified Nurse Educator with the National League for Nursing. In 2000, she received the Chancellor’s Award for Excellence in Teaching.

Fulton Nursing Program Continues to Grow

The Fulton Branch Campus is home to an Associate Degree Nursing program officially registered by the New York State Education Department and The University of the State of New York. A new full-time nursing faculty position has been created for the Fulton campus program. A state-of-the-art Nursing Lab is fully operational at the Fulton Branch Campus thanks to a SUNY High Needs Initiative Grant. A class of twenty students, who began in January 2009, will graduate in May 2010. Now that the essential components of the program are in place, a class of twenty students will be accepted for Fall 2010 and every other fall semester. Nursing information sessions will be available in the coming months. Check the Cayuga website at www.cayuga-cc.edu or contact an Admissions Representative.

The Brunell Chair in the Humanities

Professor Robert H. Brunell taught at Cayuga Community College for 50 years. He established a fund that upon his passing would bring a visiting scholar to the College for one semester, every other year.

Professor Christopher Kennedy is the CCC Foundation’s first Brunell Visiting Scholar in the Humanities. Professor Kennedy, the director of the Creative Writing MFA Program at Syracuse University, came to Cayuga in April of this year and taught a course in world mythology. Additionally, he provided a faculty enrichment workshop based on a memoir project in process and gave a public reading of his published work. At the end of the semester, he recorded Memory Unit: A Poetic Memoir, which tells the story of his mother’s struggle with Alzheimer’s. Memory Unit was recorded at Cayuga Records, a business created by CCC students under the direction of Professor Steven Keefer in our Telcom Department, and is available for purchase at www.CayugaRecords.com.

The late Professor Robert H. Brunell

This privately funded, semester-long Visiting Scholar program is unique among community colleges, and we are indebted to the late Professor Brunell for creating this outstanding legacy through his estate.
Telcom Department Launches Two New Enterprises

CCC is the only community college in New York State to offer courses that help an individual create, develop and then launch a new business in electronic media. In addition to future business incubator opportunities, the Telcom Department has launched two enterprises that celebrate entrepreneurship: Cayuga Records and C3 Video.

The new Telcom course supports Cayuga Records and teaches students how to run a recording company from top to bottom. "We now have the capability to launch one new recording every year on our Cayuga Records label," explained Cayuga Community College Electronic Media Programs Director and Professor Steve Keeler. "Our goal is to have the ability to launch four to five new recordings with our label a year." Colin Wilson's "This is Why," is Cayuga Records first recording. The album's release will be accompanied by the sale of merchandise and the launching of a new website. C3 Video is a student-run video and film production company which will produce original works while instructing the students how to develop and operate a media business.

"There is no limit to what a student will be able to achieve in this new atmosphere of learning," said Steve Keeler. "A student can take an idea, learn the skills to nurture and grow that idea and then develop their idea into a thriving new business, all with the support of the programs and instructors at CCC."

In 1966 Dan Labeille directed his first show, Antigone, for Harlequin Productions. A young, exciting new hire at the then Auburn Community College, he proceeded to create an active, dynamic theatre program. He continued to head Harlequin Productions for the next 13 years, directing classics of the theatre as well as new cutting edge works. In 1979, Dan, as head of the Humanities Department hired Bob Frame as the Technical Director of the theatre. As Dan became busier with College administration and his own growth as a theatre artist and producer, Harlequin underwent a period of transition as different directors were jobbed in for the bi-annual productions. Alumni such as Bev Hancox-Rose, Mark DeMichele, Joe Siracusa, Georgia Martin and Thames Nolan each contributed back to what was now Cayuga Community College. They brought what they learned under Dan's tutelage and shared what they learned during their theatrical careers after CCC. In 1987, Bob finally stepped forward and directed his first show for CCC, The Glass Menagerie. He has served as Director/Producer ever since. Always attracted to unknown, edgier works Bob made the choice in 1995 to only produce unpublished works. This decision has given his students the opportunity to create characters that have rarely, if ever been seen as 11 world premieres have been presented on Cayuga's Stage and playwrights have come from as far away as California to see their works produced. The program has also received over 60 awards from the Theatre Association of New York State and the American College Theatre Festival recognizing the quality of the works presented. Harlequin Productions has performed at the invitation-only NY State Theatre Festival 9 times in the past 12 years; an impressive feat. This past spring’s production is a good example of the work Harlequin produces. Falling From Trees by David Moberg was only the fourth production of this serious work. 17 students and 6 production staff mounted a show that was praised by the playwright, a theatre professor at a community college in Florida: “You really “do things right” with your productions. Your follow through and attention to detail is very impressive. I’m very glad that a company and director of your quality elected to produce that show.” And a reviewer commented: “All of the leading actors show growth and confidence from earlier Harlequin show, and Frame has a talent for placing his cast in roles where they can succeed.” A TANYS adjudicator came to see our production and awarded Merit awards for: “Excellence in Scenic Design and Lighting” and “Outstanding Direction” to the company. The audiences also were touched by this production and they grew in number each night.

Harlequin Productions has been a very important part of ACC/CCC for many years, providing students with wonderful memories from the shows they worked on or saw. Many alumni have gone on to careers in theatre; some professional many amateur but they all learned their love of the art here. Harlequin will continue to play a part in the campus culture for years to come and with the addition now of a Liberal Arts degree with a Concentration in Theatre, it is hoped that we will continue to attract talented students to the Cayuga stage.

The Spartan
Imagine over 2,000 hard covered children’s books delivered monthly to young children in their homes. Imagine the parents, grandparents and siblings reading those 23,000 books delivered to those children.

Imagination Library in Cayuga County began at the Cayuga Community College’s Annual February Family Fun Day in 2008. It was here that the 625 participants had the opportunity to sign up for free monthly books. Not only did the college host the kickoff event but it held the first campaign to generate financial support for the program. Dr. Patricia Gridley led the charge by encouraging staff to Get On Board the Imagination Library Train and support a child for only $27.

Why do families in our community need the Imagination Library?
- Learning to read and write starts long before first grade.
- Children learn new vocabulary and gain knowledge about the world when they are read to.
- Children’s early experiences with books and print greatly influence their ability to comprehend what they read later in their school years.

Lifelong learners start early and finish strong!
Growing Together is an early childhood conference held annually at Cayuga Community College which gives the community childcare providers, parents, grandparents and center staff opportunities to experience a variety of quality trainings on topics focused on the young child. Many faculty, former staff, students and colleagues assist in bringing presentations to Cayuga County.

The February Family Fun Day along with the Seanna M. Donley Growing Together Conference and the Imagination Library are wonderful examples of how the CCC staff and students go above and beyond to share their time and expertise to support families with young children in the community.

The Early Childhood degree program offered by Cayuga Community College has earned accreditation by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC) Commission on Early Childhood Associate Degree Accreditation. Offered at both its Auburn and Fulton Campuses, Cayuga’s Early Childhood program is one of only three in New York State and 51 across the country with such accreditation. Schenectady Community College and the State University of New York College at Cobleskill are also accredited by NAEYC.

Based in Washington, D.C., NAEYC developed its accreditation system in 2006 to set professional preparation standards for education programs serving young children in the United States. Federal Head Start regulations call for an associate’s degree or higher for teachers, and many states require the same in their child care and preschool programs. NAEYC accreditation provides a nationwide standard of quality to evaluate compliance with such requirements.

Cayuga offers associate degree programs in Early Childhood, Childhood Education and Adolescence Education, a one-year certificate in Early Childhood, concentrations in Early Childhood and Education within the Liberal Arts degree, and teacher assistant coursework. Information is available from Patricia Gridley, Ph.D., the program coordinator, at 315-255-1743, extension 2478.

Chancellor’s Award 2009
Three Cayuga CC Employees Receive SUNY Chancellor’s Awards

Three employees of Cayuga Community College are among this year’s recipients of top honors to faculty and staff in the State University of New York system. SUNY 2009 Chancellor’s Awards for Excellence went to:

- Sharon Farrar of Auburn for Excellence in Classified Service. Farrar, a typist at the Auburn Campus library, joined the college staff in July 2002.
- David Harbaugh of Phelps for Excellence in Professional Service. Harbaugh, network operations administrator for the college since 1997, joined Cayuga in 1988 as an instructional assistant in the computer lab.
- Elizabeth McCormick of Oswego for Excellence in Teaching. McCormick, an assistant professor of business and computer science at the Fulton Campus, joined the college in 2001 as an instructor of business and computer science.

The awards recognize consistently superior professional achievement and honor recipients as role models within the 64-campus State University of New York community.

Chancellor’s Award for Students 2009
Non-traditional CCC students win top award

Weston Eldred and Kimberly Patch, Cayuga Community College class of 2009, received the Chancellor’s Award for Student Excellence in April of 2009, the highest recognition given annually by the State University of New York to students across the 64 SUNY campuses. Weston and Kimberly represent Cayuga CC among the 238 statewide recipients of this year’s award. At a SUNY awards ceremony April 7 in Albany, Eldred and Patch received a medallion to wear at the 2009 Cayuga CC Commencement. Both Eldred and Patch are “non-traditional” students, have consistently earned dean’s list honors, and have served as tutors for other students.

In May, both received associate degrees in Liberal Arts: Mathematics and Science. Eldred with a concentration in chemistry and Patch with a concentration in biology. Weston plans to enroll in the State University College of Environmental Science and Forestry as a bioprocess/chemical engineering major. After completing a master’s degree, Weston plans to work with renewable energy technology and start “a consulting firm to implement and troubleshoot new technologies” for bio-refineries. Patch was elected vice president of the Student Government Organization in 2008. Kimberly plans to enroll in the radiation therapy program at Upstate Medical University.

Statewide, the grade point average of the 2009 award recipients is 3.77 out of a possible 4.0. Created 12 years ago by the State University of New York, the Chancellor’s Award recognizes outstanding grades and significant accomplishments within the campus or community.

Library Research Award
Amy Chamberlain ’99

A student earning her second degree from Cayuga Community College has received the college’s sixth annual Library Research Award. Amy Chamberlain of Auburn was honored for her paper, “The Uneasy Union of William Blake’s The Marriage of Heaven and Hell,” written for an English course in British literature. Even before having her name engraved on the perpetual award plaque for 2009, Chamberlain had earned a place in the library’s display case. During the past year, the library exhibited her series of paintings reinterpreting John Webster’s The Duchess of Malfi for a different course project. Chamberlain, a graduate of Auburn High School, earned her associate’s degree in Business Administration from Cayuga this spring. She also holds a Cayuga degree in Liberal Arts: Humanities and Social Science.

The Library Research Award promotes information literacy by recognizing student research for credit courses at Cayuga. Instructors submit student papers anonymously for judging by librarians at the college’s Auburn and Fulton campuses. Selection is based on standards of the State University of New York and the Association of College and Research Libraries.

Researching British literature, Amy Chamberlain found inspiration for both an award-winning paper and a series of paintings that were displayed at the Cayuga Community College library.

Two CCC grads have won Emmy Awards

Lisa Chelenza ’92
Two Time Emmy Award Winning Television Producer Radio Personality on “Gomez & Dave in the Morning” Animal Lifestyle Reporter & Pet Enthusiast

Another 1992 CCC graduate, Lisa Chelenza, received her first National Emmy Award for work on the 2002 Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City, Utah as a Feature Producer for NBC Sports. Lisa won her second Emmy for her work on the 2004 Summer Olympics in Athens, Greece once again for NBC Sports as a feature producer.

During her career Chelenza has worked as on-camera talent for TNN, Fox Sports Net and Showtime, a feature producer for Lifetime Television, NBC Sports and Time Warner News.

Currently she writes, hosts and co-produces Pet Pointers on News10 Now, airing twice weekly in Syracuse, Albany, Rochester, Buffalo and Austin, Texas. Lisa also delivers news and entertainment reports as part of the top rated “Gomez & Dave in the Morning” show syndicated across upstate New York.

At home, Chelenza cares for three cats, a dog and one fish, all of which have been rescued. She is also currently in the process of renovating a small farm in Skaneateles, New York.

Jeff Woodard ’92
Emmy Award Winning Television Producer Regional Edward R. Murrow Award Winner WGRZ News Director

Jeff Woodard has become the second graduate of Cayuga Community College to win an Emmy Award for his work in television. Woodard, who earned an associate’s degree in broadcasting from Cayuga in 1992, has been with WGRZ-TV, the NBC affiliate in Buffalo, since 1998.

In 2008, following the death of Buffalo’s former mayor Jimmy Griffin, Woodard produced a half-hour feature for the station, “The Griffin Years,” on the politician's colorful career. The report won a 2009 Emmy in the category of Politics/Government: Program/Special.

In 2008 Woodard was appointed news director for WGRZ. His team won six 2009 Regional Edward R. Murrow Awards from the national Radio-Television News Directors Association, a national organization.

Traveling to the Beat of a Different Drum
Barry T. Bilderback, Ph.D. ’84

Barry T. Bilderback, Ph.D. resides in Moscow, Idaho where he is an assistant professor of music history and ethnomusicology at the University of Idaho/Lionel Hampton School of Music. Barry graduated from CCC in 1984 and met his wife, Ann-Marie in 1989 while she was attending CCC. Barry went on to receive his B.A. degree in applied music from SUNY Oswego (1991—Magna Cum Laude) and his M.A. in music history from the Bowling Green State University College of Musical Arts (1994). Having earned his Ph.D. in music history from the University Of Oregon School Of Music (2001) he also received the School of Music's GTP Excellence in Teaching Award in the academic area.

Prior to his Lionel Hampton School of Music appointment, Dr. Bilderback taught at Linfield College and the University of Oregon. He is also a past president of the College Music Society/Pacific Northwest Chapter (2003-2005). With a dissertation and focus of study on N.A. Rimskii-Korsakov and 19th century Russian nationalism, Dr. Bilderback was awarded the Council of International Education and Exchange travel grant scholarship whereby he studied and conducted research in St. Petersburg, Russia. While giving numerous conference papers for the College Music Society, Society of Ethnomusicology, and the American Musicological Society, he has also presented his research at the University of London (Goldsmith College) for the Rimskii-Korsakov International Festival and Conference. Dr. Bilderback has also received an honorary membership to the American Slavic Society.

On the home front, Barry is currently in collaboration with fellow “Auburnian professors and scholars,” John Lamphere, Jim Viccaro, and Donald Schramm, to write an expose on the music tradition of Auburn Prison. The project is titled “Copper John’s Band: The History and Role of Music Inside the Auburn Correctional Facility”. He presented their initial research for the College Music Society/Pacific Northwest Chapter in April 2009.

Dr. Bilderback’s overseas teaching includes a study abroad course in Vienna, Salzburg and Prague during the 2006 Mozart Festival. Having recently returned from Ghana, Africa, where he conducted a study abroad course in Ghanaian drumming and dance. Dr. Bilderback is researching contemporary Ghanaian institutions and the way(s) traditional music is taught. In his study, he is collaborating with renowned master drummer Prof. Komla Amoaku (Founder and Director of the Institute for Ghanaian Music—an organization dedicated to the preservation of traditional culture), Prof. Kofi Anyidoho (University of Ghana), and Nii “Chief” Tetteh Tetteh (Founder and Director of the Kusun Cultural Centre).

Prof. Komla Amoaku is from the Ewe ethnic group and is a world renowned ethnomusicologist. Dr. Bilderback has presented his research on the Ghanaian aslatua tradition of the Ga people for the 2008 International Conference of “Music, Health, and Happiness,” held at the Royal College of Music, Manchester, UK. He has also received a Key Grant and The Innovation/Integration Teaching Grant for his current project titled “Project Nungua: Environmental and Cultural Awareness in Ghana.”

Through the grant funding he returned to Ghana in summer 2009 to continue research on “The Institutionalization of Traditional Music in Ghana.” The primary focus is on fieldwork conducted with the Ga and Ewe ethnic groups.

In October 2009 Dr. Bilderback will present a paper at the National Conference for the College Music Society titled, “They Do Not Play What is not Written Down: Contextualizing Oral Tradition in African-American Musical Studies”.

Through the University of Idaho, Dr. Bilderback received a Key Grant and Seed Grant to return to

The Sky Is Not the Limit

Major Sean J. VanHoltz ’87

Sean VanHoltz graduated cum laude from CCC with a degree in telecommunications, followed by a B.S. in Aviation Business Management from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University, Daytona Beach, FL, in 1991. After working as an Aviation Insurance Underwriter, Sean attended USAF Pilot Training and served six years full-time in the U.S. Air Force. This gave Sean the education and experience he needed to work for Gulfstream Aerospace and Flight Safety International in Savannah, GA, as a Gulfstream GV pilot instructor.

In 1999, Sean was hired by US Airways and became an instructor pilot in the Airbus A320, while maintaining his operational currency and flying combat sorties in the C-130 with the Air National Guard as a Traditional Guardsman. Immediately following 9/11, Sean accepted a voluntary furlough from US Airways and returned to active duty military status at the 174th Fighter Wing in Syracuse, NY.

While at the 174th he was selected as the Director of Operations of the 274th Air Support Operations Squadron, a special operations unit where he was trained as a Joint Terminal Attack Controller (JTAC) qualified Air Liaison Officer (ALO). During this assignment he obtained experience in the F-16D “Viper.”

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security recruited VanHoltz as a Federal Regulatory and Law Enforcement Agent in 2004 to help build their aviation security program. Subsequently, he returned to Traditional Guardsman status with the Air National Guard.

Can You Dig It?

Two Cayuga Community College alumni — one honorary and the other a graduate of the art program — have published a colorful new children’s book, Digging Spring. The book tells the story of a lonely little girl who discovers friends in her own backyard, as spring warms the earth. Flowers, birds and bugs welcome Ann to their world in soft-focus close-ups from a child’s-eye view.

Author Elisabeth Hurley of Auburn, a graduate of the art program — has an extensive background in photography and filmmaking, including the Emmy-nominated documentary “Turning Point,” which aired on PBS in 2006. Most recently, she has been in China and India shooting a project for Pepsi about the charities that soft drink company helps there.

At present, he is working on a documentary on human trafficking. He credits his success to Cayuga Community College and his education in telecommunications/radio and television. Braden grew up in Clifton Springs and graduated in 1981 from Midlakes High School. It was at Midlakes that his guidance counselors saw his passion and advised him to attend CCC.

Craig Braden ’83

Craig Braden ’83 is another CCC success story. Braden has worked on “This Week in Baseball,” a production of Major League Baseball, since 2002. He has worked on documentaries with Paul McCartney, including the Emmy-nominated “Paul McCartney in Red Square.” He also has worked on an AIDS documentary narrated by Glenn Close and Will Smith called “A Closer Walk,” which aired in 2006 on PBS.

Recently, he has been in China and India shooting a project for Pepsi about the charities that soft drink company helps there.

The Auburn Community College Library was first created in the fall of 1953, under the direction of Dean Albert T. Skinner and the Library Committee, Norman F. Bourke and John Syrjala. Set up in a 15 x 20 foot classroom in the old James Street building, the collection consisted of about 75 books stacked in three small bookcases. At the college's dedication ceremony in January 1954, some visitors, according to Dr. Skinner, had “misgivings about the future” of the library. However, by the spring of 1954, it contained about 300 volumes, with more on order, and a card catalog system was begun.

As there was no professional librarian on the staff, Syrjala and Bourke acted as the library faculty advisors. With Dean Skinner, they planned the development of a basic reference library. Under their direction, three students operated the library, which was open from ten to four Monday through Friday. Miss Judith Jorgenson, a cadet librarian from Geneseo State Teachers College, developed policies and procedures for the library and trained the three student workers. In the summer of 1954, the library was moved to two other adjoining rooms on the second floor, with stacks in one room and the reading area in the other.

During the second academic year, 1954-1955, the library collection grew under the direction of Mrs. John (Eloise F.) Hilbert, who had been appointed part-time Librarian. Mrs. Hilbert, an experienced professional, held a B.A. and a B.L.S. from Syracuse University. By March 31, 1955, the library had 2,147 volumes and subscribed to 62 periodicals and 3 newspapers.

During the last year the college was located in the James Street building, it was necessary to curtail the purchase of library books because of the lack of shelf space, but the faculty felt that as soon as the new facilities on Franklin Street were ready, the college should plan to build the number of volumes to 15,000.

When the college moved to the modern new building on Franklin Street in 1959, the library was located in what today is the Student Lounge, and had space to house 25,000 volumes. That same year Mrs. Hilbert was appointed full-time Librarian.

The campus expansion that took place in 1964 included a new building for the library, which is its current location.

Norman F. Bourke, former Dean of the College, who had contributed greatly to the development and growth of the library, died in the spring of 1977. By action of the Board of Trustees and the Cayuga County Legislature, the library officially adopted the name “Norman F. Bourke Memorial Library.” A dedication ceremony took place on February 15, 1978. A portrait of Dean Bourke, commissioned by the CCC Faculty Association and painted by Carolyn Berry of Manlius, NY, now hangs in the library.

In 1978 Douglas Michael was hired as Director of Learning Resources, and in 1979 the Library, Learning Skills Center, and Audio-Visual Center were incorporated into the Learning Resources Center. The Center included a “typing room,” and at an Open House held for visitors to the LRC in 1982, one could attend demonstrations of Apple II computers and other multi-media programs.

In 1983 the library began a project to convert all of the library holdings records, originally cataloged on 3” x 5” cards and filed in a card catalog, into MARC (machine readable cataloging) records to be added to an electronic database for online access. In 1985 a new automated circulation system was implemented for checking out books, replacing the punch-card system that had been in place since 1969.

After a two-year campus expansion project, in September of 1991 the library moved into a newly renovated facility which doubled the size of the existing library. More than 14,000 square feet had been added to incorporate a growing collection and new services.

In 1992 the library became one of the first participants in the SUNY Library Automation Implementation Program, which provided network-accessible public access library catalogs and a common integrated library software system for 40 SUNY libraries.

A small library branch was opened at the College’s Fulton Extension Center in 1997. In 2001, Judy Campanella was appointed Fulton Librarian, and the Fulton Library moved to its current location at 806 West Broadway, to become part of the Learning Commons.

In 2004 Martha Lollis was appointed to the position of Library Director. That same year, the annual Library Research Award was created, and history buff Francis P. Benton, a Cayuga County Legislator, donated over 300 books, pamphlets and brochures about the Civil War to the CCC Library.

During the 2005-6 school year, Kathy Long, Reference Librarian, retired after 37 active years in the library. The library was reorganized to create public services librarian positions at both the Auburn and Fulton campuses. “Cafe Wannabe” was created to make coffee and snacks available to library patrons, and the library computer help desk was created at the Auburn campus to offer... technical assistance to patrons. That same year the library hosted the Middle States Accreditation team, whose report commended the library for exemplifying a learner-centered facility, for its collaboration with faculty in information literacy instruction and assessment, and for being a hub of student activity. Following the retirement of Martha Lollis in 2007, Marc Wildman was appointed Director of the CCC Library. Today the library serves CCC students, faculty and staff, other current SUNY students and faculty, CCC alumni, and residents of Cayuga and Oswego counties. The collection includes over 85,000 books, 4,000 videos/DVDs, 1,300 music CDs, and other non-print items. The library subscribes to more than 250 journals, magazines and newspapers, and offers online access to the full text of over 35,000 additional periodicals. Special collections include career resources, a children's room, a law room, the Ormie King collection of memorabilia, and other local history resources. The Auburn campus also houses the college's historical archives. The library's online catalog is freely available on the web, allowing patrons to search the library's holdings from home or other remote locations. Recent web enhancements also permit students and faculty to apply online for library cards and off-campus database access, and to make online requests for interlibrary loans.

The library provides individual and group study rooms and 20 computer workstations, as well as laptops for in-house use. A wireless network permits internet access for patrons who have their own laptops in the library. TV monitors with VCRs and DVD players and headphones are available for viewing audiovisual items, and printers, a photocopier and a scanner are also available. Special equipment and assistance is available for users with disabilities.

In addition to Research and Reference Services, available in-person, by telephone, and via email, and (new in 2009) by Instant Messaging available through the library web page, the six staff librarians provide bibliographic instruction and information literacy workshops in the Library Instruction Classroom.

Thanks to a substantial bequest from the James B. Robinson estate in the fall of 2008, and a subsequent bequest in the name of Louise T. Robinson in June 2009, the library was able to refurbish its Electronic Resources Center. New modular furniture for the computer workstations, installed this summer, accommodates group study and provides more desk space for students.

Like the rest of the college facility, the library has come a long way since that original collection of 75 books. It will undoubtedly continue to evolve and grow in the future.

Fall/Winter 2009

My Love Affair with ACC/CCC

When I entered ACC in September 1960 wearing a freshman beanie, I felt like I was on top of the world. My two years here were unforgettable and wonderful. I made so many new friends. I had excellent professors, all who took a personal interest in each one of us, and knew us on a first-name basis; we were not just a number as in many larger colleges.

Besides excellent academic programs, there were many events to take part in such as fall and winter weekends with their famous ice sculptures. Basketball games, dances, yearbook and alumnac papers, and music were some of the many activities offered.

Our meals were served in the cafeteria in the basement of the main building and were catered by Hunter's Diner. No more brown bag lunches from high school. I remember sitting around the tables chatting with my friends, drinking coke and smoking Kents.

Imagine that nowadays I remember dabbling in prints in an art class in the basement with Professor Walter Long. I struggled through Math 101 with Professor Thomas Young. I'm sure he was as relieved as I when I passed the course with a C.

Professor Glenn Snyder taught me everything I knew about Child Psych. I became such an expert I proceeded to tell my mother what she had done wrong in raising me. That came to an abrupt halt. My most unforgettable teacher was Professor Robert Brunell. He was an icon, a fixture at the college. Everyone tried to get into his classes. He taught American and World Literature and made the class fun and very interesting with his dry sense of humor and sarcasm.

Two years later, I married and became a stay-at-home mother of our four children, while attending SUNY at Oswego. I graduated in 1976 with a Bachelor's Degree in Education. When the last child went to nursery school, I applied for a part-time job at the ACC Library in 1982, twenty years after I graduated. It was my first “real” job. It was so different to walk the halls as a forty-year-old staff member, and yet so familiar. It seemed natural and comfortable for me to be back at my Alma Mater. I loved seeing the new freshmen coming in September, with all the hopes and dreams I had at eighteen

The styles had changed, the building had expanded, but the professors had the same expertise and caring attitude that I had loved so much when I was a student. I worked for almost two years as a library clerk, and then left to take a job as a tutor for the Auburn School District.

I worked for 15 years with high-risk students, and then retired from teaching. I was a substitute teacher for a short time. In 2006 while taking a book out of the library, I met Martha Lollis, whom I had worked with when I first started in the library. She mentioned that she was looking for a part-time clerk in the library. She wondered if I would be interested. Was I ever?

Since then I have worked at ACC as a 66-year-old mother of four adult children and the grandmother of six wonderful grandchildren. I am again “back home at ACC.” It is a great feeling walking the halls that I had loved so much for over forty years.

The student population has grown and evolved with many matriculated students studying at the college. Fashions have certainly changed; the buildings have also expanded. The new gym is equipped with all the latest equipment for body-building, weight training and physical fitness.

The library is now a separate two-story building with computer classrooms, study areas and books on every subject, as well as many periodicals. They have the latest technology in library science, a children's room, and even audio books and DVDs for loan. There are as of 2008-9 more than 80,000 books, 440 journals and periodicals, and 1300 music CDs. There are also 4,000 DVDs available.

The auditorium, or the Irene Biggrove Theater as it is now known, has expanded seating, an improved acoustical system, as well as a stage capable of providing bigger and better productions and lectures.

The new bookstore, which has moved from the old building adjacent to the library next to the cafeteria, has been completely renovated.

The student lounge, located near the main entrance, has been changed and is accessible, warm and comfortable for the students. There have been so many positive changes at ACC, which continues to provide excellence in education.

My long time association with ACC/CCC has been a satisfying and rewarding experience. I am proud that my son Bill is currently a professor of Economics here at the college that I love, which has been such a special and huge part of my life.

Congratulations to Caitlyn Dillard from the Spartan’s women’s basketball team who was named to the NJCAA Women’s Basketball Division III 2009 All-American team. Dillard, a freshman in 2008-09, led the nation in scoring with a 23.8 points per game average. She also became the all-time single season leading scorer at Cayuga scoring 642 points this season. Only 20 players nation-wide were honored with this award…and only 2 other players from the region earned this award. She was also named to the NJCAA Region III Division III and Mid-State Athletic Conference First-team All-conference selections and was named Region III Female Athlete-of-the-Week three times during the 2008-09 season. Caitlyn hails from Lancaster, PA and went to Conestoga Valley HS in Lancaster.

Spartan men’s lacrosse player Christopher Green (Washington Township, NJ) has been named to the 2008–2009 NJCAA Academic All-Region Team. Green, who played defense for Cayuga Community College for two seasons, graduated magna cum laude in May with a degree in Liberal Arts: Humanities and Social Science, with a concentration in Criminal Justice. Off the field and away from the classroom, Green served this year as the college’s elected Student Trustee, a position he will hold until his successor begins a new term at the July Board of Trustees meeting. He intends to transfer and continue to play at Chestnut Hill College in Philadelphia, PA next year.

Ryan May (Auburn, NY) birdied his final two holes of the tournament and shot a final round 2-over par 74. He saved his best round for the last day in the tournament in posting rounds of 80-79-77-74 for a total of 310. May moved up 12 spots in the final round and finished in a tie for 37th overall with Nassau CC’s Joe Arnold in the field of 92 golfers. The Spartan freshman was one of only two golfers in the entire field to better his score in each of the tournament’s four rounds. May represented the Spartans as the top individual qualifier from the NJCAA Region III Tournament.
